DSEH004 · PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT AND EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Real Time Feedback Platforms and the Round 3 Pulse Briefing

Week 5 · Lecture 3 · Unit I · Monitoring, feedback frequency, recognition architectures and planned change

R K Singh
Senior Professor, Department of Commerce, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi

L3 · COMMIT BEFORE THEORY

More feedback is always better feedback.

Agree or disagree. Where would you expect the limit to be?

Electronic performance monitoring

RAVID ET AL. (2020)

The evidence

Monitoring was not associated with better performance, and was associated with more stress and slightly worse attitudes.

BALL (2010)

Surveillance

Monitoring shifts the employment relationship toward control and can erode trust.

Feedback frequency

LAM ET AL. (2011)

Inverted U

Performance improved with feedback frequency up to a point, then declined.

KLUGER AND DENISI (1996)

Why

Very frequent feedback overloads attention and pulls focus toward the self.

Real time feedback apps assume more is better. The research says design for the right frequency.

L3 · AN INDIAN ARCHITECTURE

HCLTech: Employees First, Customers Second

The idea

Invert the pyramid: management exists to enable the frontline employees who create value.

Mechanisms

Transparency of information and open forums in which employees could question leaders.

Nayar (2010)

L3 · PLANNED CHANGE

Lewin's three steps

Unfreeze

Create readiness: show why the current state cannot continue.

Change

Move to new behaviors with support.

Refreeze

Embed the new behaviors in systems and norms.

Lewin (1947)

L3 · ROUND 3 BRIEF

The midyear pulse: scale, correct, address resistance, or hold

OPTION	THEORY IT RESTS ON
3A Manager capability sprint	Gallup; manager as pivot
3B Targeted hotspot repair	JD R resource injection
3C Stay the course and reinforce	Lewin; Kahn
3D Reallocate and rebalance	Pfeffer; HPWS
3E Employee listening and co design	SDT and voice

Take a position on the Sales paradox. Pulse figures are in the Pulse Annex and the portal.
