DSEH004 · PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT AND EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

From Engagement Data to Strategy

Week 7 · Lecture 1 · Unit III · Saks's antecedents and consequences, social exchange, perceived support and the engagement value chain

R K Singh
Senior Professor, Department of Commerce, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi

L1 · D1 COLD CALLS

Three pods will be asked to defend one specific finding from Deliverable 1.

L1 · COMMIT BEFORE THEORY

People engage because they are paid to.

Agree or disagree. What do employees give back when the organization gives more than pay?

L1 · SAKS (2006)

Antecedents and consequences of engagement

ANTECEDENTS	ENGAGEMENT	CONSEQUENCES
Job characteristics	Job engagement	Job satisfaction
Perceived organizational and supervisor support	Organization engagement	Commitment
Rewards and recognition		Lower intention to quit
Procedural and distributive justice		Citizenship behavior

Saks separated engagement in the job from engagement with the organization; they had different antecedents.

Social exchange

CROPANZANO AND MITCHELL (2005)

Reciprocity

When the organization provides resources, employees repay with effort and engagement.

EISENBERGER ET AL. (1986)

Perceived support

Employees form a global belief about how much the organization values them.

RHOADES AND EISENBERGER (2002)

Evidence

Support relates to commitment, performance and lower withdrawal.

Christian, Garza and Slaughter (2011)

Finding

Engagement related to both task and contextual performance, beyond job attitudes.

Antecedents

Job characteristics, leadership and dispositions all predicted engagement.

Macey and colleagues (2009)

1. Conditions
   Work and leadership that make engagement possible.

2. Feelings
   Energy, absorption, enthusiasm.

3. Behaviors
   Persistence, initiative, role expansion.

4. Outcomes
   Performance, retention, customer results.

Impact against feasibility

	LOW FEASIBILITY	HIGH FEASIBILITY
High impact	Plan carefully; stage it	Act now
Low impact	Drop	Quick wins, if cheap

Feasibility at Bharat Textiles includes Manager Cooperation, not only budget.
