DSEH004 · PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT AND EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Engagement Strategy Frameworks

Week 7 · Lecture 2 · Unit III · Three horizons, deliberate and emergent strategy, HR system strength and HR attributions

R K Singh
Senior Professor, Department of Commerce, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi

L2 · COMMIT BEFORE THEORY

An engagement strategy is a list of engagement programs.

Agree or disagree. What makes a set of programs a strategy?

Baghai, Coley and White (1999), applied to engagement

HORIZON	IN GROWTH STRATEGY	IN AN ENGAGEMENT STRATEGY
H1	Defend and extend the core	Fix the conditions people meet every day
H2	Build emerging businesses	Build manager capability and new practices
H3	Create options for the future	Experiment with new ways of working

Deliberate and emergent

MINTZBERG AND WATERS (1985)

Intended and realized

Some intended strategy is never realized; some realized strategy was never intended.

Implication

An engagement strategy is judged by the pattern of decisions employees actually experience.

Bowen and Ostroff (2004): a strong HRM system

FEATURE	MEANING
Distinctiveness	Practices are visible, understandable and legitimate
Consistency	Practices send the same message over time and across practices
Consensus	Decision makers agree, and the system is seen as fair

A weak system lets each manager send a different message. Employees then read the manager, not the policy.

Nishii, Lepak and Schneider (2008)

Commitment attributions

Practices seen as aimed at quality and employee wellbeing related to positive attitudes.

Control attributions

Practices seen as aimed at cost cutting or exploitation related to worse attitudes.

The same pulse survey can be read as care or as surveillance.

L2 · PAIR EXERCISE

Sketch a three horizon engagement plan for one Bharat Textiles function. What must be consistent across all three horizons?

REFERENCES

Sources for this lecture (1 of 1)

Baghai, M., Coley, S., and White, D. (1999). The Alchemy of Growth. Perseus.

Bowen, D. E., and Ostroff, C. (2004). Understanding HRM firm performance linkages: The role of the strength of the HRM system. Academy of Management Review, 29(2), 203 to 221.

Mintzberg, H., and Waters, J. A. (1985). Of strategies, deliberate and emergent. Strategic Management Journal, 6(3), 257 to 272.

Nishii, L. H., Lepak, D. P., and Schneider, B. (2008). Employee attributions of the why of HR practices. Personnel Psychology, 61(3), 503 to 545.